

There are some things to make a wish on. Your recycling bin isn't one of them. Make sure the items you put in your bin are accepted by your recycling service provider. If in doubt, find out or throw it out. Start by downloading our "Recycle More, Recycle Better" guide. This guide tells you what to put in your recycling bin and what not to put in your bin. Please share this guide so that your family, friends, co-workers and neighbors can learn to recycle better too!

In this photo, can you tell who's wearing secondhand? Neither can anyone else. If you have clothes you no longer want, you have numerous options for donating, selling and recycling them. There are also many opportunities for acquiring good quality secondhand clothes for pennies on the dollar or free. For more info, check out our blog, Embrace Secondhand Couture.

Keep it loose! Don't bag your recyclables-- whether you use a curbside bin or take it to a recycling center. If you store your recyclables in a bag, simply empty the recyclables into the bin and reuse the bag, or recycle it. Find a spot to recycle them at RecycleSpot.org.

Even with the best of intentions, it is easy to lose track of food that is buried in the back of the refrigerator. Try designating an area up front for food that should be eaten relatively soon to prevent spoiling. You can use this "Eat First" tag as a visual reminder.
